PureOFlow

PureOFlow. The PureOFlow whole-house reverse-osmosis water purification system features a special membrane technology from GE that provides desalination and purification in one system. According to the company, the system reduces up to 98% of substances such as arsenic, lead, and radium, and it softens the water without the need for salts. PureOFlow fits alongside the furnace and water heater, using the same amount of space as a traditional soft water system. It delivers up to 5,600 gallons per day.
